if anyone wants to redo the sim data or correct some action sequence palettes, feel free. if you don't like the ratings, then redo them.

enjoy.

"TSB - PB Ed.zip" is the original game with the playbook editor hack edit:

v1.11

- Weather (RP, RS, BC, PC, and REC drop)
- 2pt Conversion (has a couple of bugs)
- 1st downs: 10 or 20 yards
- Difficulty: Normal, Juiced

v1.05

- JAX mini-helmet
- the playoff bracket/Team Ranking's palette glitch
- schedule shows all games, has correct dates
- ravens mini-helmet
- NFC west stats are saved correctly
- some other bugs were fixed
- quarter length is adjustable from "options" menu
- weather is not included. the option is a placeholder.

v1.02

- updated palettes thanks to buck
- beep sound should be gone
- the JAX palette fixed
- and i think some name/numbers were fixed
- playbook editing option in-game

This rom is godlike, congrats man - just beautiful. I almost got an editor done in case people don't like the ratings that I just need to tweak a bit, but that's child's play compared to this masterpiece.

Woot!

Change the ratings? Besides being a 32 team rom, that's the best part of it! Sure there might be a few argueable ratings but every rom will have that, and that's part of the fun anyways.

I thought the opening scene would look more like something from the 2006 rom.

(see attachment)

Also, is it possible to change the year to read 2007 instead of 1991?

Thanks to everyone that helped with the project, especially the guys that got it going after the ratings were completed...

BoFB (Defensive ratings)

Cxrom (Rom hack and editing, playtesting)

GRG (Graphics)

Me (Offensive ratings)

MrBeef (Project Manager ;-p, playtesting)

MrNFL (Tweaking/updating of final rosters)

Slim (Use of webspace for organizing)

TomTupa (Roster updating and playtesting)

Congrats to everyone; I can't wait to get this rom on a cart.

LoL that would figure. LA finally gets a team.

I agree hopefully a new manager will be created to help with the players and ratings.

yeah probably, would have to rework some menu's to further reduce the amount of sram thats used as working ram. one, maybe two teams could added before you just run out of space for stats.

I've said it before and I'll say it again: You guys are great!!!

Thanks so much for not only this particular ROM, but for any and all ROMs shared on this site. As an old-time Tecmo fan, I'm continually amazed at the effort and allegiance you guys have to getting out better and better versions.

Of course, HUGE THANKS to cxrom for his "Holy Grail" discovery...the 32-team ROM...and for all of the work put into it. And thanks to everyone else involved on this 32-team ROM. I'll get HOURS of entertainment out of this, and I greatly appreciate all of your time and effort.

cxrom,

Can we get a copy of the HEX addresses (locations) of all the important stuff, like playbooks, screen and team colors, and all that sort of stuff?

I'd do some work on the action sequence colors if I knew where to go and change them.

team 1-28 are all in the same places as before. as for the nfc-west, i don't know exact addresses, the assembler resolves all labels for me. when i get home i'll search for 'em. one of the afc-south teams is the old KC so watch out for that 3 palette thing. i think it was KC that had 3 palettes.

ok, this is another thing - what chip and burner package do I need to make this happen (link?)? I've used NESreproductions a couple times and it's getting expensive. I guarantee you I will buy a handful of chips and the burner once I get the info.
Again, thanks cxrom.

Seems to be workn' for me.

Also for the Dolphins...The starting QB Should be John Beck (#9) The rookie standout from BYU.

And you have Jay Feeley (K) and Brandon Fields (P) with the same number. Brandon should wear jersey number 4.

Also, in the NFL Leaders section of the game, there seems to be a terrible sound every once in a while when moving in and out of the leaders.

The rosters aren't a true midseason update. It's more of a beginning of the year while taking into account things that happened roster. Aside from players who were injured for the year extremely early, this is meant to be a replay from the beginning/midseason update hybrid.

Man, it's a lot harder to edit all the playbooks than I thought. Any ideas on the best way to do this? I'm a stickler for having passing plays that match and go with running plays. I hate when the playaction doesn't match!!!

since I can't edit it:

Bears:

QB

Rex is starter, Griese is backup

Rex should have 31 pc, 56 ps, 31 avoid block....Griese should have 44 pc, 44 ps, 44 block

RB

Benson is out for the year, Peterson is starter and should have slightly higher hp. Benson is useless in this rom.

WR

At least give Hester 31 receptions, he's useless at 19. I did like how you gave Berrian 63 rec.
That catch against DEN last week was sick.

Kreutz should be white

Jerseys in game are black/black, but celebrations had it white/black. Also, Baltimore also had similar color scheme issues when I played them. Some sound issues with the "hut hut hut" being missing

While I do understand the logic, it's kind of funny that we're comparing the greatest return man in NFL history to Sam Graddy. That being said, I can see where the original poster was coming from in that Hester shouldn't be completely useless at receiver. He may not know how to run a route, but he can catch the ball.

If Hester wasn't a great return man, he might not even have made the rom. Would he even be playing receiver in the NFL if he wasn't so good on special teams?? Knowing routes/getting open is a big part of getting receptions in the NFL, and Tecmo has a "receptions" category, not "hands".

If you want him to have a 75 ms and 44 in receptions there is drummer's rom BTW, you should notice return men have speed corresponding to their team's return game.

Hester being better than 19re makes absolutely no sense at all.
That's like saying that Willis McGahee should have 56 rec because he can actually catch... what about Bo Jackson having 19re on the original? I'm sure he can catch better than that...
While we're at it, we should give Vince Young 63ms and Dante Hall 69ms.

Incredible! I was about to buy a PS3 to keep me entertained until Xmas, but this has completely put that by the wayside. Props to all of you who made this possible. Only a few bugs I've noticed thus far. In the playoffs, some of the mini helmets are wrong (STL comes out grey, and also comes out a little strange in team data screens, and carolina's mini helmet came out red/blue instead of grey/white). Oh yea, also the 1991s instead of 2007s and the missing hut, hut sounds (in opponents?).

PS - Can anyone make a "juiced" version of this rom?

AGAIN amazing work by all. I don't meant to point out negatives, only to help find and flaws before people start putting the rom unto carts.

The Browns playbook irked me; only one play where you can throw to Winslow? Big mistake there. Not gonna complain though because this rom is so awesome. (Though i didn't like the playbook, I thought the Browns' stat were great)

I'm amused that the Dolphins and Falcons won the division m first time through, haha.

What is a "jucied rom"?

You know how after you play some games in the season mode....the computer gets tuffer. For instance, if you go 16-0 after a while the computer get much more difficult. And the same teams that you steamrolled in regular season play are now much more difficult in the playoffs.

Thats called "Juiced".

There is an edit/hack that allows the whole season to be "Juiced" so the computer is more difficult right from week 1.

You can find a Juiced rom here:

My first simmed season, the Dolphins went to the superbowl? I don't see how, their players are rated horrible. The second season, they went 2-14. So, maybe its just one of those things.

The sim data had to be redone by hand, and with there being 32 teams in a different order than before makes it tougher to edit. Plus that really wasn't a big focus of the rom.

Remember this project pretty much died for a while, it was just put out there pretty quickly once we got it going since it's so late in the year.

I'm sure next year's rom will have most if not all the bugs out and data tweaked so it won't be as rough around the edges. However I do think this rom is pretty awesome as it is!

I couldn't agree more. If there are bugs fine, but ratings? Shut up already. Be happy you are even playing this game. It's manna from heaven.

The Browns playbook irked me; only one play where you can throw to Winslow? Big mistake there. Not gonna complain though because this rom is so awesome. (Though i didn't like the playbook, I thought the Browns' stat were great)

I'm amused that the Dolphins and Falcons won the division m first time through, haha.

You realize you can change the playbooks right??

and just think when the bugs are all fixed AND we eventually have a working manager. Oh and we release it earlier next season because we have everything needed to do the rom right.

WOW where's DG now.

What is a "juiced rom"?

You know how after you play some games in the season mode....the computer gets tuffer. For instance, if you go 16-0 after a while the computer get much more difficult. And the same teams that you steamrolled in regular season play are now much more difficult in the playoffs.

Thats called "Juiced".

There is an edit/hack that allows the whole season to be "Juiced" so the computer is more difficult right from week 1.

You can find a Juiced rom here:

I see. I had no idea these roms weren't like that already, maybe because I only coach all the time!!

On a side note about Hester, see original rom - Sam Graddy

While I do understand the logic, it's kind of funny that we're comparing the greatest return man in NFL history to Sam Graddy. That being said, I can see where the original poster was coming from in that Hester shouldn't be completely useless at receiver. He may not know how to run a route, but he can catch the ball.

After watching Hester blow by the defensive backs and then drop a sure touchdown pass this afternoon, I'm ok with the ratings as is.

Totally agree.

Many thanks for the rom. Where else could Kellen Clemens throw touchdown passes to Brad Smith, and the Jets actually win?

Only in Tecmo...or if we're playing the Dolphins!

And while on the AFC east, I don't care if he goes undefeated...Tom Brady still has a bastard child and the Pats are the only proven cheaters in the NFL this year.

Let's go Ravens!!! (for this week at least)

I automatically lower most RB's rec due to their speed. Take the original. Even with only 19rec 75ms makes a bo a formidable pass catching weapon.

MS and REC are really the only two attribute you have to work with if you go with original style ratings. To me they are roughly equal in terms of value.

What would you rather have a 75ms 25rec WR or a 25ms 81rec Wr.

▽ kingsoby1 said:

Hester being better than 19re makes absolutely no sense at all.

That's like saying that Willis McGahee should have 56 rec because he can actually catch... what about Bo Jackson having 19re on the original? I'm sure he can catch better than that...

While we're at it, we should give Vince Young 63ms and Dante Hall 69ms.

this is all for the NFC-West:

cxrom,

A couple questions:

How should I fix stuff - should I just list the HEX address and the bytes to insert - or should I make a .ips, or just replace the bytes myself and apply it to the rom?

Are the rest of the teams' (non NFC-West) data (sim,colors,rosters,...etc) in the same r0xm locations as the original 28 teams are (in the orig rom)? For example, are Carolina's respective addresses where 91 Atlanta's used to be?

I'm just not sure what locations have changed and what have stayed the same. Or the general structure of the things you've added.

Once an editor is out, I'm probably going to pump out my own post-season hack... I mean, I did the O ratings here, but it's not my typical style. Plus I enjoy rating the entire thing Ed and I were also kicking around the idea of running the first automated 32 team rom online league... we'll see if we get time though.

This rom is godlike, congrats man - just beautiful. I almost got an editor done in case people don't like the ratings that I just need to tweak a bit, but that's child's play compared to this masterpiece.

What's the timetable on the editor? I want to make an all-time greats rom with 32 teams. Will you be able to see faces on the editor, like in TSBM?

That's for TPC, mainly using the original rom. You can also find leagues, but I'd try TPC first. I don't think games from this rom could be uploaded though, if that's what you're asking.

I'm sorry, I don't consider you to be a good christian and a "true believer" if you are a hypocrite, a liar, a complete asshole, or any kind of general scumbag. I have plenty of religious friends and family, and they're all good people (and by religious, I mean that they understand their religion, and don't worship just because god told them to after they supposedly did lots of drugs).

You have absolutely no fucking right to criticize someone's "lame excuse" if you don't know their situation. You are a racist, a douchebag, and a hypocrite.

Player haters killed Sean Taylor? Are you serious? Did you even see the news or read the paper?

And in response to your coast-to-coast traveling statement, the only reason one could have run into a lot of "player haters" is by being a dick. It's nearly a universal law in the US... you leave people alone, they leave you alone, unless you're not white or straight.

I would also like to know if a 32 team ROM would be something that was possible for the SNES version. That is primarily what I play. The graphics are a lot better as well as the cut scenes. The playbooks are the same for both versions as far as I know. It probably would be more work than the nes version. Anyway, thought I'd put in my 2 cents as well. Thanks!!!

the NES has 6502 and the SNES has a 65816 which are in the same family. so they have the same assembly language just with some added instructions. the 65816 even has a mode where it functions as a 6502.

i just don't know very much about the snes architecture and i haven't seen an snes emulator with as many hacking features as fceudxsp. that would make it pretty hard to pull off.

That kinda sucks but oh well. I'll play the 28 team version. It's still awesome. How hard would it be to make some changes to the division placement of some teams? Thanks!!!

You can put the players anywhere, editing the graphics is the issue, because different teams use different amounts of sprites for each logo/helmet. Some teams you can't put in some slots without there being graphic issues.

That has nothing to do with the ROM, that's NESen being a pain in the ass and not reading your controller or keyboard. I suggest using another emulator. I prefer VirtuaNES.

I just wanted to say this rom is pretty amazing! I downloaded when it was released, I love it. I really appreciate all the effort everyone put in to make it possible. It is so wild to play this game I've loved after all these years with 32 teams and correct divisions. (I have downloaded many other updated roms over the years, and I still have my nes.) I just grin looking at the team select screen 😎 Plus it works perfectly, the small handful of bugs don't effect actual gameplay. I've lurked on this site for a long time, but never posted before. I don't have any programming skills, so there isn't much I can contribute. But I just had to say something about this rom.

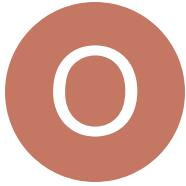

Even the ratings are fine by me. Nothing is ever perfect, and it's always opinion. The ratings you put in work out pretty well, and reflect the current state of the NFL. And like somebody said, if you know how to play, you can handle the cpu Pats or whoever. I like the challenge of beating them with a weak team.

I agree, this is the best Tecmo site out there! I admire your dedication.
Great job!
Can't wait for the update!

updated to v1.02

whats new:

- updated palettes thanks to buck
- beep sound should be gone
- the JAX palette fixed
- and i think some name/numbers were fixed

there is now an option to edit plays from within a game. they last the duration of that game only.

it's funny that you say that, because i have a hack that does just that with the select button. the only thing i'm hung up on is re-assigning an AI to the player you just vacated. otherwise they just stand there.

even so, I'm assuming in a game situation the guy you want to leave is out of the play anyway. Let them just stand there 😊

So why not just swap the AI bytes (individual defense play data) for the players swapped. Like if RCB swapped with FS, then RCB uses former FS AI - and FS uses former RCB AI? edit - I just realized you're talking about "in play" switching guys...I was thinking of during play select, swapping positions.

for "in play" switching, even if they stand there, who cares ? that's the punishment for vacating them. And like BO_FB says, they're probably out of the play anyways (like laying on their ass after running into a lineman)

While we're at it, how about injuries? Would it be possible to make them longer, even season ending, and have reports about them? So and so is out 4 weeks and this dude is out for the season.

Maybe a franchise mode complete with a draft and an FA system, lmao.
No, but the injury thing would be sweet.

Great work on the rom so far. Quick question.... I'm missing the sound byte for the QB saying "hut hut hut hut....". There is no sound for those few seconds but then everything returns to normal after the snap. I'm using FCEUltra so is it a problem with the rom or one of my sound settings? All other TSB roms sound fine.

that's normal for this rom (and any derivatives). i removed the rest of that sound sample to free up some space, so only the "ready..." plays.

CX, could you tell me the hex location of the playbook that you put in the in game menu of your new 32 team rom, I would like to add it to a version of yours that I had previously updated w/ the pass and run defensive reaction hacks and new alternate unies for teams and also added new nfl endzones to that rom as well, thought it might be easier to add the new play book to the in-game menu of this rom instead of redoing the new one and could you also tell me the hex location for the sound that you remove for the qb to add more space to the 32 team rom I read were you said if the nfl expanded that there was enough room for maybe two more teams to be added untill then would I be able to put the qb's sound back in the rom threw the hex location? thanks for everything you have done cx and I'll show my appreciation by keeping what ever you released updated to the best of my knowledge as i'm still learning. Previously updated w/ the pass and run defensive reaction hacks and new alternate unies for teams and also added new NFL endzones to that ROM as well, thought it might be easier to add the new play book to the in-game menu of this ROM instead of redoing the new one trust me it won't be easier. you'll have to update ~120 pointers in order to just copy/paste the menu stuff. you might try making an *.ips out of your changes against whatever copy u started from. then apply that to the new version.

the problem is that i have to place all new code before the 4 new teams' roster so that the trailing space can be for future name usage. this in turn shifts all the names and screws up the pointers.

Quote

and could you also tell me the hex location for the sound that you remove for the QB to add more space to the 32 team ROM I read were you said if the NFL expanded that there was enough room for maybe two more teams to be added until then would I be able to put the QB's sound back in the ROM through the hex location?

ahh that damn sample. I'm no sound guru, so bear with me, but here's the exact reason it's not included (warning: technical BS to follow):

The NES can output 1-bit samples through the DMC (Delta Modulation Channel). Those QB sound effects are created with this channel. The address of the sample to be played is set by writing to $4012. The address itself is 2 bytes, but the programmer can only specify 1 byte.

(16-bit address)

%11aaaaaa aa000000

The 0s and 1s are set, I can only specify the value of the As. This gives an effective address range of $C000 to $FFC0.

The original had names and numbers stored in PRG bank 1 which was mapped to $8000 - $BFFF (CPU address space). And since $C000 - $FXXX was already taken (and cannot be remapped), that left me with $FXXX - $FFFF. This is where the above sample is stored. One day I'd like to restore the sample and have the code that loads the names/attributes bank switch if accessing an NFC West team. Though that's another can of worms.

ahh that damn sample. i'm no sound guru, so bear with me, but here's the exact reason its not included (warning: technical bs to follow):

the nes can output 1-bit samples through the DMC (delta modulation channel). those qb sound effects are created with this channel. the address of the sample to be played is set by writing to $4012. the address itself is 2 bytes, but the programmer can only specify 1 byte.

(16-bit address)

%11aaaaaaaa aa000000

the 0s and 1s are set, i can only specify the value of the As. this gives an effective address range of $C000 to $FFC0.

the original had names and numbers stored in prg bank 1 which was mapped to $8000 - $BFFF (cpu address space). and since $C000 - $Fxxx was already taken (and cannot be remapped), that left me with $Fxxx - $FFF0. this is where the above sample is stored.

one day i'd like to restore the sample and have the code that loads the names/attributes bank switch if accessing an NFC west team. though thats another can of worms.

combined with the pm i sent you:

Quote

i think you are confusing the cpu addressing space with the actual rom addresses. so here is a better explanation:

PC = Program Counter

PPU = Picture Processing Unit

APU = Audio Processing Unit

the NES has a 16-bit PC which holds the address of the next instruction to be executed. with a 16-bit PC you can only address $0000-$FFFF. here is a break-down of what is what in CPU address space.

$0000-$07FF: RAM

$0800-$1FFF: Mirror of RAM

$2000-$2007: PPU registers

$2008-$3FFF: Mirror of PPU registers

$4000-$4017: APU registers/sprite DMA register/controller port regis

$4018-$5FFF: for TSB, there is nothing here

$6000-$7FFF: SRAM

$8000-$9FFF: prg bank 1

$A000-$BFFF: prg bank 2

$C000-$DFFF: prg bank 3

$E000-$FFFF: prg bank 4

so the NES can only "see" $8000 bytes of data that is on the cartridge at a time (mapped to $8000-$FFFF). to get around this, they created special chips called "mappers" to swap in different banks of data into the address space the the NES can see. TSB uses the MMC3 mapper.

in my post i usually write NES addresses with a '$' (e.g. $C000) and actual file addresses with "0x" (e.g. 0x08457). now the addresses you see in a hex editor mean nothing to the NES because that data can only be mapped to $8000-$FFFF.

$4012 is an NES address. it is part of memory mapped I/O. this means that instead of having special instructions for I/O between the main cpu and the ppu/apu, the programmer just writes the data to an address. the co-processors watch for writes to those addresses and act accordingly.

now to add another layer of confusion, the MMC3 has it's own set of memory mapped registers. these registers swap PRG (code/data) and CHR (graphic) banks, changing mirroring modes (has to do with scrolling), enable/disable sram, and set IRQs (interrupt requests). these are mapped to $8000, $8001, $A000, $A001, $C000, $C001, $E000, $E001. so not only can code or data be located at these addresses, but writing to them will have some effect on the MMC3. it will not overwrite what's there since $8000-$FFFF is technically read-only.

i hope this clears up the confusion. the nesDev wiki will have a better explanation and more info if you are interested.

so in short: it will not be possible to restore the soundfx without some serious work. i don't mean to come off as an ass but there is no other way i can explain it.

CX, I had a playoff party and about 30 or so of my friends showed up, I broke out your 32team rom on the laptop and we had a mini playoff, the ones that hadn't played it loved the simple controls and addictive game play, sum had played it back in the day and remembrered why they loved it so much (they all loved it), we played until six in the morning the ones that had played it remembered the (missing) qb's hut sound and it originally only had 28 teams, they were amazed at what you had done, anyway this rom is a true peace of art just wanted to know if I could help in the final few stokes until it's a master peace, not to say it's not now, were there is a will there is a way, if or when, you get ready to take this great task on, if there is anyway I can help, just let me know, i won't bother you w/ this again, thanks for all the knowledge that you have shared and for all the knowledge you will share w/ us on this site and for the fire that you have giving to me to help make this THE BEST TECMO SITE AROUND just wanted to let you know that you have put alot of smiles on the faces of people on this site and otheres to.
peace cx GOD be w/ you!!!

cxrom - how do you access teams in NFC West for the pro-bowl?

for example, teams 1-28 are '0 thru 1B'. I tried using 1C, 1D, 1E, 1F but this doesn't point to the teams.

This is the greatest and best thing in the world! Well maybe not but I love it! I've ran the game on by Nintendo DS (emulator Nes DS) and it works great. There are minor game bugs but who cares because there are 32 teams and a mid game playbook editor! I mainly registered my account here so you guys know you are amazing to spend the time and effort to work on this project.

first post updated to v1.05. thank jstout for fixing a lot of the bugs. the quarter length is now adjustable from an "options" menu on the main menu. the weather option is a placeholder at this point and doesn't do anything. the blank slot below "weather" is not a bug, it's for future uses.

Wow....this gets better and better. I have gone ahead and downloaded the latest version and re-applied my work to it. The TSB TOOL and this game are the best thing to happen to this community in a LONG time!

Yes, the original was great back in the day but know we can update the rosters to the original and the hybrid 32team rom by (CXROM) easily thanks to (BAD_AL) and CXROM is doing sum stuff to the original that now in my opinion making it better than the super nes version which in the past was head and shoulders above the nes version, this is truly a great and exciting time for nes version of this rom and what CXROM has planed for the rom in the future like maybe weather effects and god only knows what else besides CX himself is truly separating this rom from anything else, we might be looking in a year or so and say, this can't be from the original and that's not a bad thing since if you want to play the original you can always go back and do so, this is about the (evolution of tecmo super bowl). I would also just like to say thanks to CXROM, Jstout and BAD_AL for all ther hard work and time they have put into making this the best TSB ever!!!

The thing about the original is that the teams really do have their own personality. For example, you know what you're going to get when you go against SF. They're friggin awesome and you really have to work to beat them, run time down, stuff like that. With Houston and that R&S you're toast if you play the run. And vice versa with Detroit. I can go an entire game and not choose a pass play on defense when playing Sanders. It's hard to get that today, maybe the parity in the NFL is now effecting TSB!!! With the newer games, it takes a lot of time and editing to get that feel. Yes, this is the best game ever after some tweaking but the original will always have that swagger, that thing that distinguishes it.

Well said

Yes, well said but like you just wrote you know what you got w/ the original since "91" and it will always have that swagger (to some extent) because it was the first of its kind but I'm talking about the evolution of TSB and if your saying you would rather play the original over the new hybrid 32 team rom by CXROM than that's something I can't say myself and just like you also said you can now tweak the game to your liking w/ the original or the 32 team rom, to give each team and player their own personality something back in the day only the developers who did original TSB had that power, now we're able to edit the entire game anyway at anytime the way we want to tweak it just the way we want and all that debating over players, ratings and teams w/ the original or the 32 team rom doesn't apply anymore because of that ability, to me anyway, don't get me wrong nobody loves the original more than me, it's because of the original that we're at this point but all things have to start at a point and more times than not, get better w/ time and to me TSB has done just that, (gotten better over time) and to me w/ all of this keep in mind, better than the original, the new hybrid 32 team rom has all that swagger and then sum (32 teams, playbook in start menu, selectable quarter time) and only will get even better when CX puts in stuff like maybe weather effects or who knows what else CX will come up w/ he is a very talented programmer. 2- years from now, if TSB keeps evolving the way it has here lately, it may very well be remembered to everyone just as the starting point and not as the best TSB game ever made, but as I have posted in other threads everyone has their own opinion, some may agree w/ this some may not, I'm just glad we're at this point in time w/ this great game!!!

Hello all.. long time lurker, first time poster.

I appreciate all that is done here and I'll have to say this is the greatest thing to hit my computer, this is real amazing stuff. Thanks to all that make it possible.

A few questions about the game that the people here should be able to answer:

Members

124 posts

When the defensive player gets an interception/fumble, what makes them fast or have a strong hitting power when running it back? Example: I just picked one with Ed Reed and he was extremely slow when running it back, yet he was breaking every tackle. I know this was pretty random in the '91 version as well, but I was wondering if it is random or whether it can be set through the programming of the game? (I don't run any of those programs to change the roms and such.. so I don't know)

Now that we have a time option.. when I'm playing a season with four minutes games, does the computer in the simulations of games then score less, or are they still in the same simulation time and score literally the same as the old roms? Example: If I have it set at 7 mins will they score 42-38 instead of 31-28?

Also I was hoping to throw out a few major/maybe unreasonable goals for this rom in the future:

1. Trading.. I'd love to play with Hester but not have to play with the Bears. heh.
2. Formation setting in game (OF Starters Set).. It'd be cool to run 4 WR offense with the Pats, or 3 WR 1 TE. (I'm sure you can do this with an editor that most of the people here have)
3. Tackles Statistic.. Probably too far-fetched, but would be way cool.

I guess that's it.. and since I don't want to post in the bugs thread also, I'll just throw out an irritating mention of the fact that Ben Leber is white, not black. 🤦

Keep on keepin' on.. love you guys.

Thanks,

-jb

That's why rushed out ROMS usually are panned. Getting the right feel takes lots of testing and isn't just about the player ratings.

I have been on this board for over 3 months and he has been a ass to me from the start, in his own words (I worry about the quality of a ROM when someone cant even master uploading a file to the site) just have posted the ROM and decided to make a quick change to it and he wants to post that stupid remark, like his better than sum-one cause he's been a member for a longer time and because of that he thinks he has that right, I haven't seen any ROM post from him only complaints about other peoples hard work on Roms, what he thinks it should be like and if he did it he would have done this and asking and multi posting the same repeated question that me and peepmike have answered for him but thats right were below him, he's been a member longer, then tells me I couldn't have edited a ROM w/ the old tool be-for bad_al came-out w/ his beta tool for the 32 team ROM and then when he gets the beta tool he says in his own words (now I don't have to deal w/ the poster who ends every thing w/ sup!!!) < -- thats me by the way, after that remark in-spite of the all the other's, I lost all respect for him. I mean at the time how in the hell do you think you were playing CX's 32 team ROM w/ those changes nobody els had did anything to that ROM until AL's beta release, ow please give us one of your great creation ow ROM master and yes I have rated an entire ROM for the nes and super nes, ck them out for your self their posted w/ pass and run hacks, haven't seen a ROM here before w/ that combination, anyway I try to be courtesy and try to help out everybody on this site w/ the thing Ive learned from other members and on my own and I try to be positive to everyone, just read my other Post's and you well see that for your-self and now you know what my problem is w/ him why don't you ask him, what his problem is (or what is his problem with me) I think he likes to try to be a bully because he has been a member for a long time on this site and maybe he can say sum things to other posters on this site and they won't say anything back because of that, but thats not me!!!

to get back on subject, i wonder what cxrom has for that blank menu item, hell i am pumped at him just putting a 32 team rom and he just keeps going. the rom is bad ass

I think he's hard at work trying to get a 2pt conversion in there. That, and whatever he had planned for the weather.

TDO, I wasn't trying to be a jerk, it's just hard when you're trying to help and contribute and there's someone blue 🤦‍♂️ they're trying to cut you down when you make a post but you're right about this post, I was being a jerk, this thread is for the 32 team ROM and not someone trying to get attention, if CX can pull this off, wait let me rephrase that, when he gets the 2-point conversion completed, this ROM will rival madden on all levels and can you imagine, if he can put in weather effects in the ROM to, I think CX should get poster of the decade because of what he has done in such a short period of time and what he will do in the future as-well. keep up the good work everybody and long live TSB!!!

Suck it up and embrace it. 2008 rosters should have 2008 rules.. put in replay too! haha.

No, but 2 point conversion would be a great addition.. one that makes sense to add. I just hope that if one does get added the cpu will know when to go for it.. and will actually go for it.

I think Tecmo would crap its pants if it knew what a few guys who really,really love this game and are getting it updated been over 15 yrs now and someone is always finding something new to make this game much better.

I'd rather see defensive substitutions or alignment (ie 3-4, 4-3, nickel) than a 2pt conversion but that might be out of the realm of possiblity. I don't even think there is enough room left for extra defensive players. Same with 3-4, 4-3, nickel.

Shit i'm amazed by what has been accomplished so far.

Yea, he said that their was enough room for probably two more teams, if the NFL expanded but that was before what ever he is up to now, if he does the 2-point conversion and maybe weather effects that might eat up the Left over ram and and two or maybe one teams might not still be a possibility but he can always rework the ROM if the NFL expands that much, which it looks like it will sooner than later

I'm just hoping for an off switch for fumbles and an on switch for preseason injuries. And to dream I'd love for the stats to go on unlimited.... while I'm at it including tackles as well.

What is the point behind an off switch for fumbles?

I don't think he would implement a 2pt conversion if the CPU didn't react correctly.
then again, nobody else but me plays the CPU daily!!

ME to bro, thats all I play is the CPU, thats why i did the pass and run hacks w/ custom juice to have a better CPU challenging not unless a friend comes over, can't play on-line w/nestopia put in tpc and aim just won't connect 😊

As far as me personally I would like the 2 point conversion put in even if the CPU doesn't use it correctly. The game AI can get tweaked to get it right eventually. As far as changing the D I think that is a bad idea. The reason I think so is because I love TSB because it is a fun simple game. If I wanted to start changing the D I'd be playing Madden 08. I do like the sound of unlimited stats.

Now that I can play TSB on my DS I try and play everyday (But my 360 still gets a lot more love). So I can't be part of the amigos 😊 .

Polly-O is the official string cheese of the amigos.

In any event, what do you mean by unlimited stats? Tracking over the years or just more seasonal stats?

I think he means, more seasonal stats like maybe having as many defensive stats like it is for the offence.

Someone mentioned earlier about how difficult it is to get the rosters straight these days. I totally agree. I've been working on mine for a while now and I still don't feel as if I'm done. I'll attach them to this post for anyone who wants to take a gander.

The 2-point conversion would be nice, but I'd imagine that there would have to be some CPU logic added to the game, so that might not be possible. Actually, I'd like to see a very basic fantasy draft available for preseason games. I doubt that would be viable for a season (again, CPU draft selection logic would be necessary), but would be nice for man vs man competition. I'm not a programmer and space is at a premium right now, so it probably can't happen. I'm very interested in seeing what will happen with this weather option...

Have a good one.

I mean exceeding the game's set yardage, td, etc. limits in all statistical categories. Maybe double the storage somehow? That should be enough, 126 tds might be hard to get.

Long time lurker, very few posts. I have to say that the 32 team ROM is amazing. You guys have squeezed more out of TSB than I ever thought possible. Just mind blowing. And now I can set the quarter lengths, and change plays in the middle of the game. I'm almost speechless. It's TSB nirvana!

I would vote for the 2-point conversion as well, but there is still one thing about TSB the way it is that bugs me. I've always lived with it up until now, but seeing all the things you've accomplished with this ROM, I would think that it wouldn't be too hard to fix. After a safety in the NFL, the team caught in the endzone must kick to the other team from their own 20. On-sides kicks are not allowed, but in TSB, the CPU can and, if it's late in the 4th quarter and they're losing, will kick an on-sides kick and sometimes get it. Nothing irritates me more than to be in a tight game leading by a point or two, make a big play by tackling the CPU in the endzone, only to have him recover an on-sides kick. I know I still get the two points, but I should get the ball and be able to run out the clock for the win. Instead I'm fighting defensively again to keep him from scoring on some BS long run or pass play.

Anyway, is there any "switch to flip" in all that code that will prevent on-side kicks when kicking off from the 20 (as opposed to the 35 for a normal kickoff)?

P.S. I have a Palm TX with an emulator called NesEm on it. I was concerned, but the 32 team ROM runs great on it. The screen's a little small, but not intolerable, and the speed is almost perfect. TSB anywhere, anytime!

im kinda torn between the 2pt conversion and a fantasy draft. i mean we've all played this game for over 16 years without the 2pt conversion, and dealt fine so i guess thats secondary to me compared to a fantasy draft. its a tough one but if anyone can do either it would make this game by far the best football game EVER!

Madden could never accomplish what has been done over the last few months in terms of adding great features to an already great game engine. i seriously might not ever be able to play madden again.

Let CXROM do what ever he wants to the ROM, he has only made it better and only we'll continue to do so, I would hate to think he has been working on a 2-point conversion system for the game for months now to have to read I don't know if I want that, I mean if not for him we wouldn't have a 32team ROM, in-game playbook and adjustable quarter time, as far as I know he isn't taking a poll on this, everybody is entitled to their opinion and I respect that, I just don't think he should have to read sumthing to discourage him on his HARD WORK!!! This is a reply to the people that have been posting, they don't think he should do a 2-point conversion!!! You can't imagine the hours he has on this and the rom it's self!!!

You can play vs your cpu all you want. The 2 point conversion would be incredible for league play. strategy would become different and just add more excitement and intensity to games.

Could you imagine a title game coming down to a 2 point conversion instead of the player opting for a tie and head into OT.

The Madden game has adjusted through the yrs going from console to console. We now have enough knowledgeable guys who are willing to make Tsb more up to date. If you dont like whats being done to the game thats cool as you have the original if you like the 32 rom with all the bells and whistles you can now enjoy that also. Its a win-win situation for everyone.

dial-up internet and only 20 hours of it. very nice.

i recently started playing with the 2pt conversion idea again and this time around is looking a lot more promising. i have a 6pt conversion working. 😊 i've only tried it with man vs man and man vs com and no the com didn't use it. still got some more stuff to do. as with the other gameplay hacks, you'll be able to turn it off from the options menu. that way everyone is happy.

you know what screw it, after thinking about it 2pt conversion would probably be way better cause if you really wanted to spend the time on "fantasy rosters" you could just change the names and shit of the players to the corresponding teams. (time consuming!) I mean with everything added recently that would be the most logical of additions.
 oh yeah on the fantasy roster thing, can you like copy and paste the names and attributes of players to different teams with the TSBTool? cause then you really wouldnt need a fantasy draft.

My 360 and PS3 are getting minimal game time since I found the TSB 2007 Rom. I still think this is going to be my favorite game of 2008. I'm actually going to get it made into a cartridge so I can play it on my TV. I noticed two little problems with the rom (probably easy fixes but I'm technologically impaired). After you win the Super Bowl it says the 1991 (yeah it is minor nitpicking but the front screen and season info has already been fixed). The second is that the Bears are always wearing a black uniform. I haven't noticed any other errors as of yet. I love this game!

Also a minor off-topic question about ratings (I'm not arguing about them). How did you guys decided what player gets what rating? I think the my Cards are pretty close to perfect for TSB.

Hilarious. I agree. I also love how words like "HARD WORK" or "AWESOME SKILLS" are always accentuated with caps or 17 exclamation points. How about some RITALIN!!!!!!!!!!!!!! It really makes me wonder sometimes just how much Superman loves cxrom and the 32 team rom.

P.S. If you really want a laugh, read one of Super's posts out loud with all the voice inflections and shouting...

The rom could be expanded to 512k of program for this. I'm honestly surprised cxrom didn't expand it from the start and use the new areas for the code. But then again I don't know how much of a pain it would be to write and check all the bank changes.

i bank swapped for large segments of code, but for short pieces the costs outweighed the benefits. at minimum you'd need this for every swap:

```
    lda #BANK_TO_SWAP          ; swap new bank sta $8000
    pha
    lda #NEW_BANK_INDEX
    sta $8001

    jsr Some_Function

    pla                      ; swap back
    sta $8000
    lda #PREV_BANK_INDEX
    sta $8001

    rts

and the 32rom is really just a bunch of pointer hacks:

```
; teamIndexLOW = $1E
; teamIndexHI = $22

    cpx teamIndexLOW
    bcs _isExp

_isReg: lda REGULAR_DATA, X
        rts
```

```
_isExp: cmp teamIndexHI
       bcs _isReg

       lda EXPANSION_DATA, X

having correct 4-3/3-4 defenses would be cool. especially if the reactions were updated to match up.

Right, I understand how to do it but it does make sense that a lot of the stuff was small jumps of code. Also it might be possible to use something similar to the existing swapping routine for less code.

SWAP_8000: ; $D8DD
           STX $2E
           LDA #$06
           BNE :+
SWAP_A000: ; $D8E3
           STX $2F
           LDA #$07
           ORA $33
           STA $34
           SEC
           ROR $2C
           STA BANKSELECT
           STX BANKDATA
           LSR $2C

Yeah, if it could be setup to read the team and select the 34 or 43 defense than I could easily make the reactions for a 43 defense. The offense would need to adjust the blocking and run assignments though so correct blocks and holes existed especially for the CPU.

i figure, hack the toss screen to read base defense for both teams and set 2 variables. keep 2 copies of offense and defense ai data. hack the bank swapping routines for the ai to swap in different data banks depending on the 2 variables. someone would need to find out how the game tracks who has possession because i still haven't figured it out.
writing ai for a 3-4 defense and an offense against a 3-4 is gonna be a lot of work. if you're up to it, i'll set it up.

I'm up to it for sure though I'd probably ask to let me finish the current playbook I'm doing for my rom as I wanted it done by the end of March and ready for the easy stuff.

I've looked everywhere for how it tracks the possession. The closest I've been is when it changes players it uses a jsr then jmp to one code for player1 and a different set for player2 but I didn't spot anything obvious yet in those and they do merge back to the same area. I'll look in my notes and post them back in this.

I can't seem to find the kickoff change in my notes but here is the turnover spots I was looking through. The core jumps are below.

FG Miss, Punt, Turnovers:

$876F:20 9A CC JSR $CC9A

Long time lurker, very few posts. I have to say that the 32 team ROM is amazing. You guys have squeezed more out of TSB than I ever thought possible. Just mind blowing. And now I can set the quarter lengths, and change plays in the middle of the game. I'm almost speechless. It's TSB nirvana!

I would vote for the 2-point conversion as well, but there is still one thing about TSB the way it is that bugs me. I've always lived with it up until now, but seeing all the things you've accomplished with this ROM, I would think that it wouldn't be too hard to fix. After a safety in the NFL, the team caught in the endzone must kick to the other team from their own 20. On-sides kicks are not allowed, but in TSB, the CPU can and, if it's late in the 4th quarter and they're losing, will kick an on-sides kick and sometimes get it. Nothing irritates me more than to be in a tight game leading by a point or two, make a big play by tackling the CPU in the endzone, only to have him recover an on-sides kick. I know I still get the two points, but I should get the ball and be able to run out the clock for the win. Instead I'm fighting defensively again to keep him from scoring on some BS long run or pass play.

Anyway, is there any "switch to flip" in all that code that will prevent on-side kicks when kicking off from the 20 (as opposed to the 35 for a normal kickoff)?

So I guess I'm the only one this bothers?

Jstout, I'm curious about the playbook you're making. I'm hoping that some of the common playbook hacks might be included, namely; the FB blocking the gap on the T formation sweep and adjusting the FB T formation sweep to the top so that the HB carries it. A couple plays that I put on my rom might be of interest to you as well. The R&S dive play, which is a simple formation hack stemmed from the singleback dive, and the R&S screen pass. Of all the plays I made, those two were probably my favorite ones. If you're interested, I still have their hex data saved and I could post it here.

I'd like to see the hex for the R&S screen.

It really makes me wonder sometimes just how much Superman loves cxrom and the 32 team rom.

P.S. If you really want a laugh, read one of Super's posts out loud with all the voice inflections and shouting...

Glade to see that a couple of my post have piqued your interest. tkamsem, I do love the 32 team rom cxrom released, anybody who has ever played tecmo super bowl has got to love that rom, CX did put a lot of hard work into the rom and yes he is a talented programmer, I give credit when credit is due, you should know this but you probably just download rom's and make idiot remarks to other people that actually make a contribution to the site, right!!! Thought I would add little accentuate with caps for you and please read this out loud to

Where does the bug list stand on this? Will we hopefully have all the bugs cleaned up (NFC West stats, etc.) in time for an awesome 2008/2009 ROM? Thanks for everyone's efforts, especially cxrom!

Which version are you playing? Go to page 1 of this thread and get version 1.05. Most all bugs (including the NFC West stats you mentioned) have been fixed.

I went through and fixed the rosters and sim levels of the teams and players. Now the depth charts are more accurate, some ratings adjusted for the end of the seasons, cromartie and a few others have been added, I added a few players like allen rossum (with limited offensive ability) to take back kicks, and I adjusted the sim levels of all the teams and a ton of players. Adjusting the sim levels now gives players like Brady and Moss a better chance of leading the league on simulations, and it makes it so the Pats and Colts are the leagues best teams, not the Dolphins and Falcons (like it seemed to be before). check it out.. lemme know what ya think.

thanks to many of you I've been able to contribute (hopefully) something here. I've added an appropriate 2008-09 schedule of opponents to v105 rom. While the official NFL schedule won't be released for a month or so, the opponents each team will face in the comming season has already been established. So if you want the fun of playing with your favourite team against all the teams they will face this year (home and away accurate) hopefully you will download this modified ROM. You can just take the schedule from it if you want using the TSBtoolsupreme. I've made most of the recent roster changes, and revised many of the players attributes. I compared each position to the original 1991 game and tried to get a similar distribution of abilities among players. I think it plays well.

I hope some of you find this ROM entertaining even if you just take the schedule from it. I took way longer than I would have imagined to put it together.

Thanks to everyone who has contributed to the production of the 32 team ROM (cxrom et al.) and the TSBtool supreme (BAD_AL). It's fantastic what you have created.

set the value at address 0x2c422. input the hex value of the color you want.

so to set the field brown like he shows, you could use a TSBTool SET command:

SET(0x2c422, 0x18)

or just go there in a hex editor and overwrite it yourself.

here's a rough copy of the weather hack. since i made this long before the options menu, there is no way to turn weather on/off or set type in game. i recommend using fceuxdsp since it has a built in hex editor.

goto sram (Tools->Hex Editor->View->NES Memory) at $7FF0.

$7FF0: 0=off, 1=on

$7FF1: 0=clear, 1=snow, 2=rain

as you can tell its hard to make the animated rain look good since the NES only has one background plane, which in turn forces the sprites to have to have higher priority. again this is rough, since i didn't update all the rain graphics or fix the nametable shearing. cut scenes also revert back to default palettes. if i remember correctly only BC is affected by weather at this point.

i may just can the animation and go with Gaffney's idea.

yeah, the rain is a little rough - would make for a good Tecmo ACID bowl or something 😊 . I think the brown field for rain would be ok.

Wow, I had no idea animating the weather was even a possibility. It actually looks surprisingly good, and hopefully my previous post doesn't discourage you from continuing to explore this.

I have to say, I hadn't visited the boards in a while, but it's amazing what you guys have been able to do with the game. The rom hacking has definitely been taken to a whole new level - 32 teams, in-game playbook changes, it's incredibly impressive.

On a more basic front, would it be possible to have an option to turn injuries ON for Pre-Season games? I imagine the one major complication would be if the rom applied a Pre-Season game injury to the in-progress Season players, but even if that were the case hopefully folks wouldn't be using their season save states to play Pre-Season games... and if they did, hopefully they would be wise enough to turn the option off.

a Pre-Season game injury to the in-progress Season players, but even if that were the case hopefully folks wouldn't be using their season save states to play Pre-Season games... and if they did, hopefully they would be wise enough to turn the option off.

from my understanding, two copies of team data are kept in ram for each team while playing. one is the data saved for the season (each team has a slot) and lasts until a data reset; the other is a temp storage (2 slots only) for in game only and is cleared across games. if you're playing season games, the temp data is merged with the season data after the blue screen.

it may be possible without interfering with season data. it seems all you'd have to do is just find the code that skips injuries if in preaseason mode and disable it. though i haven't looked into it.

my post below has how to enable injuries but it glitches when you play pro bowl mode (someone would have to find a way around that to make it work totally correct but I haven't looked seriously into this yet).

Did you have this problem when you edited the field colors? When I changed the colors behind the right endzone didn't take all the way.

i had that same problem with my weather hack. you can try changing which solid tile the grass uses (to your grey one) if the endzone has grey available, or hack the palette that the endzone is using to inclued a grey.

what would be a good distance for a 2pt conversion? in tsb, being what it is, two yards just doesn't seem difficult enough to keep people honest.

Agreed. Maybe 4 or 5.

I'd say about 5 or 6.

In the NFL the 2 pt conversion rate is almost 50%, so it shouldn't be too far away.

Especially since passing gets pretty difficult inside the 10 yard line. It's easier to pass in the NFL than it is in tecmo that close.

I'd say between 3-5 yards.

I say leave it where the XP is set up. If it's easy it's easy, so what. Most things in Tecmo are far easier than the real deal, isn't that why we love it? 😊 You can't break off 50-yard runs every other play in real football, but you do in Tecmo.

As someone said, passing from the 2 is pretty hard, and you only have one play. It could get called, your opponent could pick the right LB to stuff you, it's not automatic like the XP and that's really all that matters.

Ideally you'd like it to be a tough decision to go for 2 though, and only in cases where you need it. If not it becomes a case of hardly ever kicking extra points.

the endzone is not the problem. it's the green that shows up around the sides of the field at the right end. i looked for it in both hex editor and in tile layer pro. was just wondering if anyone found where that small patch of green is located in hex editor. looks like it has to be changed in a hex editor and not in tile editor.

im going to go against the grain on the 2pt conversion thing. i personally would put it exactly where it is in the NFL. the two yard line.

like someone else said .. passing is harder there so you mainly have to just play good run defense. most pass plays will be ineffective from that close.

let the gamers fight over keeping it honest. i say stick with authenticity.

Not sure what's going on with this weather thing.. that weather rom hurt my eyes though. Anyways, the 2pt conversion... please, please, PLEASE keep it at the standard (2+ yard) NFL hash. For the same reasons as everyone else said here.

Alright good point, I f'd up a few playbooks too, sort of minor (like 3 wr, I accidentally had Glenn in a running play and I need to stop with the 4 running plays for one rb, cuz they dominate sims then). And yes, I used the TSB_Tool_Supreme.

The left endzone color is connected with the complete field color at .. 0x2c422. For some strange reason the right endzone is not in the same area. At least I haven't been able to find it. Chances are the right endzone is connected with the rest of the field that isn't edited at 0x2c422.

Anyone know where that location is?

The game does a color switch from blue/red/white (midfield) to green/red/white when going to the right endzone.

Change x2C0C5 and x2C154 to the color you want instead of green.

OK - maybe I am an idiot, but I downloaded the tool and I can't access the command prompt. how the heck do i do that? Basically I open it up and I see the command prompt in the background for a split second, but then the GUI opens and the command prompt disappears and I can't figure out how to access it. When I close the GUI, I see the command prompt close again for a split second. The GUI works fine and I'm using Vista if that matters. Any help would be awesome.

I just registered on the forum to say thank you for this ROM! I was playing the original TSB with a friend the other day, and I commented on how cool it would be if it were updated with current rosters and teams. A quick google search a few hours later and here it is!
Is anyone else using a modded Xbox to play? I have a softmod with mednafenx_nes and this ROM runs great on it!
Thanks again, this is awesome!!!!

unfortunately 15 seems to cause some weird issues where you can really be past the yard marker and be short of the first down or vice versa.

10, 16, 20 maybe.

How about a no first downs option on that too.. everything is "and goal".. that'd be a new twist to the game.

I'm not sure if this has been brought up before, but the Tecmo lettering on the top of the main menu page is white, and I can't seem to change it to any other color.

Offset: x1A147 (should change that color, doesn't appear to be doing anything) updated the first post with v1.11. Quote

v1.11

- Weather (RP, RS, BC, PC, and REC drop)
- 2pt Conversion (has a couple of bugs)
- 1st downs: 10 or 20 yards
- Difficulty: Normal, Juiced

Still has the 2007 version rosters.

There are 3 things I know of when using the 2pt conversion:

- scoring a td after time expires at half or 4th
- returning an int or fumble will not give you the option for 2pt
- stats get thrown off by 2pt attempts

Granted, I only tried this once, but on my very first play, I threw a bomb and on a jj it was going to a cut-scene and instead of the cut-scene it took me back to the title screen and the game froze.

Meeerrraaargh. I'd love to add, at the very least, that 2pt conversion to Tecmo Super Coach, for sure. I don't know how IPS patches function, but if a patch can be provided/is possible for this update to your ROM CXROM, and without it causing a hassle to create, that would be pretty rad. If not, totally understandable. It goes without saying that your work on TSB continues to change the game—for the better.
EDIT: Pffft. I just checked out your update, CXROM. That is sick. That's all I have to say. Sick.

You may or may not know, but during poor weather games, when first downs get measured by the ref, the ground is still green. I mention it only because it seems like you spent some It's alright, list whatever you find.

Another one is when you get stopped on a run attempt for 2pt. I remember testing it out a lot when I was working on it, o well. So for now the 2pt conversion is still a work in progress.

RE: 1.11

Did some major things get changed or moved around?

I'm trying to make a patch of a rom I'm currently working on (based on 1.05) and apply it to 1.11, but the patch isn't working.

So I tried to make a patch of 1.11 to 1.05 and apply it to my rom - doesn't work - minihelmets color is off, some text is wrong, and it freezes on kickoff.

Any ideas of a workaround?

(PS - thanks for the update!!!) 😊

Yeah, I figured that. I'd just like to know where in hex I could go in and set each individual juice value myself - because I don't like the same values as 16-0 (or the "normal"). 😊

I think some things did get moved around. I made the mistake of mixing code and data and as code gets changed, everything behind it gets pushed around. I should probably move all data in front of code to avoid this. The rom was also expanded to the max size, but I don't really remember where along the line I did that. So that may not be the problem.

buck: Here's the addresses you wanted. It works by skipping the normal juice values and using a different set (same as the 16-0 values).

$89DC:8D 78 66 STA $6678

$89DF:A9 04 LDA #$04 <- 0x349F0

$89E1:8D 79 66 STA $6679

EDIT: when "JUICED" is on - the values at the addresses given by cxrom are loaded.

(So, when "juiced" is on it just jumps and grabs the 16th juice values?) = NO Man, I don't know if I can bear to update the rom I've been hacking (Time Machine 2) to this v 1.11...too much copy and paste - and I'm not sure where to paste.

The weather hack is nice!

RE: v 1.11

I'm unable to edit NFC West teams in TSB TOOL Supreme. Also getting the "ROM is not correct size" error. That's a bitch...

Started to play v1.1.

Picked Preseason Dolphins vs Bears.

I kicked off. Stopped hester. They went 3 and out and then punted.

When the snap went to the punter, the screen went back to the title screen.

the music stayed on the "in game" instead of the intro.

I played using Nestopia.

Just an FYI.

I've been knocking out some of the bugs and merged jstout's fixes. My xbox shat out on me about a month or so ago, so I don't have a way to test MAN vs MAN. I do plan on getting a used one and modding it, but in the mean time, anyone mind being a tester?

I could test a bit or two.

Hi cxrom,

Hope all is well, thanks for your continued efforts and breathing new life into a 16 year old game. If you need any help or testing done, I would be more than glade to help... but I don't think you could find a better tester than BUCK to assist you. Again thx's and keep up the great work and long live TSB.

It would be pretty amazing to see a version 1.11 with the buggy 2-pt conversion removed and everything else left in. I'd love to have all my favorite roms - and my own - have a juiced option within one game instead of having to release two.

I've been around this site for too long. I saw this post, remembered that someone else has posted this exact post a while back, and immediately recognized it as SPAM (see the "Canada Drugs" in the signature). A failed attempt at cleverly thwarting us, itself thwarted by an addiction to this forum.

Just looking at the hacks implemented in 1.11. Considering that the 2pt conversion is buggy has anyone ever considered simply disabling that particular menu item?

this thread needs to be linked hard, MGK. especially the 1st post with the downloads - it has the "virgin" 28-team with in-game playbook changer as well.

This thread is the 1st hyper-link in my ""New to TSB.org?"" thread. It will also be contained in the 'Most Important Forum Links' thread that I'll be creating, and am currently drafting (thanks for the suggestion, Buck). You're right in that this ROM is basically the ROM at the base of everything now-a-days. I have also added it to the pinned resources thread.

This attached Rom doesn't actually change the playbook. The option is there, but when you try to change it in game it doesn't do anything? Anyone know how to fix this?

I edited the main post because the 28 team rom with in game playbook was broken as had been mentioned years ago. I used the patch Tecmobo made years ago and posted a corrected rom.

Thank you so much. I hate to say that I have been losing sleep about this, but it has bothered me that version didn't save. Thank you so much for editing it. I believe that everyone can agree that the original rom with only the playbook change is about as good as it gets. Thank you, thank you thank you!

I recently tried to copy and paste Tecmonster's roster file onto a TSB2007 rom (with most defenses) that I'm editing. All of the NFC West rosters are jumbled (names, skin, numbers and what not, the attributes went through). What version am I supposed to download for this or is there a fix? I'm using FCEUX.

You probably need to shorten a number of the player names in tecmonsters roster file.

Drummer sent me this a long time ago when I had the exact same problem with the NFC West, and it works:

open the rom up in translhextion (of course)
on the menu, Offset / Jump to... / x3C010 / Ok

on the menu, Selection / Select Block... / x4000F (Select up to and including offset:) / Ok on the menu, Selection / Copy / Ok

click on the hex area so it unhighlights

on the menu, Offset / Jump to... / x7C010 / Ok

on the menu, Selection / Paste / Overwrite and Paste Data how many times: 1 / Ok on the menu, File / Save or Save As...

done

@Bruddog and Tecmoster,

Thank you the cutting and pasting worked. Also, I REALLY like what you did with the ratings. I've been tinkering with something like this, but was thinking of doing something for college. This allows me to test things along with editing the defenses. Good work

Thanks quince. My only change to those ratings since I posted them was some minor RS,RPand MS adjustments to the quarterbacks to slow them down a little bit, but I've been pretty happy overall with them. I would definitely recommend using bruddog's dynamic com vs. com HP hack since my high-low spreads on HP are kind of tight though.
